Darlene Hooymans Gardner Absolutely. I had a part-time job at the Mount for a while and in the winter, even though it was only like 4:30, I had to walk through that breezeway on my way home. Creepy! It was really long then too, before they built the "rich" houses.

government officials did not see the economic wisdom of building a swing bridge at the secondary St. Joseph Island bridge when it was re-built a decade or so ago. Sailboats with tall masts could be sailing on the North Channel enjoying the St. Joseph Island circle tour and spending more tourism dollars in Hilton Beach and Richard's Landing.
13 hours ago · Like · Comment · Unsubscribe

Richard Stuetz The swing bridge could potentially open up an alternate shipping lane for freighters on the North Channel. Apparently, the current shipping lanes on the other side of St. Joe Island and the American Neebish Island are shallow and have to be dredged continuously. The North Channel is deeper.

Ken Hattie Jokyonim I dressed up as a walrus for the Rollerama when it opened at the old Woolco. Believe me when I say you do not want to skate up and down Queen Street, for at least 2 hours, in the Community Day parade in the middle of summer.

Rick Deevey You'd have to put video games in there then. ;) But I agree; kids could benefit from anything that got them more active. Hell, so could I.

Ken Hattie Jokyonim Rollerskating didn't really go out of style, they just sold out. Rollerama on Queen was packed most nights, quad- and in-line skates. They closed because they wanted more money from office leases.

Helen Kennedy Yes English and French are the "official languages" AND I realize some job posts you need to be biligual! But that still is not the point I was trying to make!!!!!!!!!!!!
8 hours ago · Like

Rick Deevey Two different issues, Rob. Yes the French schhol board wanted a new school and City Council voted against it for economic reasons. End of that story. Then that SAPLR group got hold of the wrong end of the stick and whipped up a lot of static and an iffy petition to make the Sault English-only. Our then-mayor Boss Joe Fratesi was pissed off at being passed over for a judge-ship because he wasn't "officially" bi-lingual so he rammed that legislation through. Nobody was trying to force anything from the French side; the city wasn't going to be forced to do business or do it's printing in French as well. It was a lot of bigotry and paranoia from a few people that whipped up a lot more in others. And the Sault comes off looking like a lot of Nazis. It didn't catch on anywhere else like some people thought it would.

Rick Deevey Yeah, Ken, I was being ironic (re: Seasons in the Sun) I always hated that song. And nobody knows why Billy Joe MacAllister jumped off the Tallahatchie Bridge. That's the point of the Bobby Gentry song; the general indifference to a young man's suicide. I don't count the movie's reason.

Classical Latin was no longer offered at St. Mary's College or Mount St. Joseph due to the declining level of student interest as an elective for course selections. Even an valiant effort to merge and combine grade 9 and Grade 10 Latin classes from SMC and MSJC was not successful in abating the gradual demise and the subsequent cancellation of Classical Latin as an elective course offering for someone in the Sault who wanted to learn this classical language.

Remembrance Day was a school holiday until former Ontario Education Minister Dr. Bette Stephenson introduced legislation to rescind November 11th as a school holiday. Upon passage of the legislation, the media reported that Minister Stephenson wanted schools open on Remembrance Day because not enough students were participating in local memorial services (staying home or playing street hockey). Did you march on Queen Street from the cenotaph to the Memorial Gardens and assemble inside for the Remembrance Day service?

you would stop your car on Hwy 17 to give a ride to a thumbing hitchhiker without the fear that SSM Police Services or the OPP would call you later and ask you what you did with the person you so kindly offered a ride. Sadly, it would appear that blind trust among strangers (good samaritan driver and friendly adventuresome backpacker) can be swept into the dustbin of the "good ol' days" when you treated others the way you would want to be treated by them.

22 hours ago · Like

Rick Deevey Yeah. Different owners. The Jolly Friar was run by Dale who ran the wine store. When it was re-opened as Cellar Tap, it was owned by Fausto, from the Familty Chef; he let his girlfriend run it (she wasn't so hot at it). Koch's Corner is another guy altogether. I haven't actually been in there under that name yet. Been meaning to go check it out.
22 hours ago · Like

Rick Deevey Fausto actually had Jeff Priddle, the guy who ran the U-Brew (and brother of Bill the guitarist from Treble Charger) co-managing the place and handling the brewpub part. He made some very fine beers too, but he kept butting heads with Fausto's squeeze and quit after a couple months. Then Fausto sold off all the brewery gear and the brewpub part was no more. Then they went to in-house gambling on the horses and the place slid into the shitter. Stopped frequenting after that. But we had some great times in there. A couple of great St. Paddy's shows and we even filmed some stuff for the Xmas Telethon in there. A very young Crystal Shawanda was a guest vocalist.
22 hours ago · Like

Dan R Duggan I went into Koch's shortly after they bought it, they had the horse racing in there, the bet booth is where the coat check was, they hadnt started any real changes and it was looking pretty dumpy, you could see where they pulled some of the pub decoration off the walls, the bartender said they were going to redecorate the place.

Richard Stuetz Once a truckload of sand was ordered and students wheel-barrowed the sand into the pit. It was then generously spread onto the huge dance sandbox. That winter Thursday night pub was themed "Hawaiian Beach Party" That event was a smashing success! Needless to say, the cleanup was a monumental task. Despite the exceedingly positive feedback from the students and lukewarm response from the administration, this event to my knowledge was a one-time wonder. A blast from the past that will never be forgotten!

the Wellington Square Mall (excluding McDonald's) could never quite grow and prosper vis-à-vis Station Mall, Cambrian Mall, Market Square Mall and Churchill Plaza. Rick Deevey Buried Treasure was different. It was an orange sherbet on a plastic stick. You'd lick it off and there'd be some kind of figurine molded on the stick under the sherbet. It was Silverwoods that used to do the ice cream in a paper cylinder. You'd get it with a sugar cone, like the ones you get with Drumsticks now.

Dorothy R Fitzgerald It's getting a bit difficult to find the posts that you would like to review. Who ever knew there would be so many wonderful memories of growing up in the Soo?I've found a couple of old, long lost friends on here. Than you so much to the person that started this site. I will be back. Right now, I have to invite one of my best friends from school to be on my Facebook friends list! Have a good night everyone, we'll chat some more tomorrow!

Dorothy R Fitzgerald I have to admit, I am not computer literate. If my grandson was here, he would shake his head and say, "Ma, why do you even have a computer?"My reply would be, "So you would come over to visit once in a while Dear!" I'm serious!! LOL!

Rick Deevey My 7th grade teacher Clay Allinotte had the fastest whip-arm pitch. And he didn't pull a bit of it when pitching for us kids in the schoolyard either. He could put it exactly where he wanted it, so nobody got beaned, thank gawd. It would've killed one of us.

If people are not interested in threads that they deem not Sault related, then just skip them. Don't be a dufus and start pissing and moaning on people's threads and ruin the fun atmosphere of them. And I don't see what your problem is anyway since there is no guidelines or rules written for this group. See the name of the group? It's about Sault Ste Marie. It's an open ended question - "You know you're from Sault Ste Marie when..." Open ended means we can answer it with anything we want. Plus, everyone that does is from or spent time in Sault Ste Marie - deal with it

Dan R Duggan I never did, you know why, I caught on really fast. they would make the kids who got the strap sit out side the principle's office until recess started and the kids walked by you and saw that you had to stay inside, then you would be called in just before recess ended and you missed out on that as well, so I saw these bad kids doing this and it hit me that I am not missing out on recess, getting the strap or looking bad in front of all the other kids!

Rick Deevey They didn't wait for recess at my school. The strap wailed at all hours. It was always left up to the Vice Principal though. He was the one in charge of discipline. But the story goes that if you did something REALLY bad, then it was the Principal's duty to administer it. And NObody wanted to get the strap from old Sam Fera.

at one time there were two cablevision companies in the Sault: Lake Superior Cablevision and Continental Cablevision. Continental's market share of subscribers was too small. Lake Superior emerged as a monopoly for cablevision.

Rick Deevey We had an antenna on the roof until we got cable back in the mid-70s. Up till then we had 2 channels: The CBC on 2 and CBS on 10 from Soo Michigan. If conditions were right, you could sometimes see a fuzzy channel 4 NBC affiliate from somewhere down in mid Michigan. Used to piss me off, because it seemed like they played more cartoons on that channel.

I remember when boats went through the Soo Canal in the 1970's. I had 2 cousins and an uncle work there. My uncle was the lock master and we use to go visit him. He would ride his bike to meet up with the boats coming through. He retired when they closed and my cousins transferred out to the Welland Canal. It was always fun to climb the look out they had.

Had to ask my family what they remembered about the SOO and right up front they said "THE FOOD" ! No matter where you went the food was excellent. Yes the Italian first and foremost but also the French, Ukrainen, German, Chinese, etc. The resteraunts were GREAT and welcoming !!! So there's another plug for the eats of the SOO, I Left.

you went on the annual smelt run at Harmony River or the creek that discharges into Gawas Bay on St. Joseph Island. Some years the smelt were so thick, just three nets full and you could go home. Other years, the run was sparse and you would catch the odd sea lamprey. Of course, you wouldn't put the lamprey back into the water.

Your father or uncle would give you $1 to go buy a pack of cigarettes at the candy store and the person behind the counter would actually sell them to you, regardless of the fact that you were a minor? Ah, so easy back then.

Monday at 4:56am · Like · 1 person

Dorothy R Fitzgerald Well Sam,you were buying the smokes and coming back for more,the magazines,if you were just looking,they weren't making any $!
Monday at 5:12am · Like

Sam Caputo It was more of a tongue-in-cheek comment I was making. It was more in reference to the fact that I was minor when I was buying the cigarettes. The candy store owners and employees would overlook that fact when it came to the cigarettes but certainly didn't overlook it when it came to the magazines. But you do make a valid point as well Dorothy.

John Moore 40 storey building Dan? Is it being named "the pie in the sky?", which is what it is - just doesn't seem remotely feasible. They are talking about 10 stories of professional offices in addition to condos. Wiith new offices located near the new hospital, new long term care facilities being built near Sault College and other doctor's offices on East Street and Queen Street, it seems totally bogus; reminiscent of that Philip Garthford bozzo and his Gateway Development. Stubbies and draft balls will make a comeback before that thing gets developed!!!

I once bought a portable cassette player (110 bucks back then) when they first came out. It was the size of loaf of bread, with a strap attached. Basically, a huge box but "portable"because it had a strap attached. How exciting to be able to listen to my April Wine as I walked around the neighborhood, my hipbone getting bruised by the "portable" tape player smashing against it.

I sure don't want to start a 300 post thing about songs, please….but who remembers this song?? I always found it very upsetting when I was a little kid. Here are the lyrics: "Run Joey, run Joey…. girl: " Daddy please don't, it wasn't his fault, he means so much to me…daddy please don't, we're gonna get married…." Then suddenly you hear a gunshot go off.

Cristina McNeilly Hello to all my former classmates. There were 2 other classes I was in. For those of you who didn't realize, I immigrated here and had to learn English so I started off in Kindergarten and worked my way up. So much has changed but I appreciate all who helped me and were true friends along the way.

I know nobody remembers it, but must have heard about it. The International Hotel on the corner of Bruce and Queen. A grand place of it's time. Burnt down in 1916 I believe. I have a draft pitcher from the place and I'm sure it is lead crystal.

I do rememember the old stone wall though. Was it not part of the lot where the old Memorial Gardens was? I think I remember that wall being on the south side. Maybe it's still there? Is that where that section of cobble stone street was/is? I can always remember walking on those cobbles as a young kid and marveling at them. For some reason it always seemed to on Community Day or maybe when the circus came to the Gardens. Anyway, I have a good pic of that hotel. My grandmother (Elizabeth Pritchard) worked there as a young woman.

Penhorwood Park....if you know this place then you remember toboganning every winter in the gulley.....and you might remember swinging on a rope from a tree....and you might remember having "sleep-outs" in the park back around 1970. We pitched tents in the park and had a "weiner roast". There was a sprinkler pool there that the city turned on when it was really hot out. Other neighbourhoods had the same stuff. There were a lot of kids back then, and we were busy all the time. Parents DID NOT have to entertain us. What the hell happened?

there was a Husky station on the south side of Hwy 17 at the big curve at Town Line Road. It was the most expensive gas around. There was also "The Old English Tea House" on the property. The prices for candy were reasonable, however.

Two tips for internet conversations: 1. Using all caps is rude as it is considered screaming or yelling and can get a person evicted from forums, etc and it is very difficult for others to read. 2. If you have difficulty reading text on the 'net, you can increase font size under borwser's inernet options OR you can hold down the ctrl key and hit the plus sign to zoom in on a page.

Does anyone remember in the winter hitching rides at the back of the city buses? The driver would go faster hoping to shake us ,then he would stop and try to chase us off. Of course we would latch back on by the time he would get back on ,sit down and get the bus moving again...good times...lol

You remember that Home Hardware on Second Line East used to be Beaver Lumber, which in turn used to be Saveway (not to be confused with the grocery chain Safeway on Pim St.). You also remember that Soo Mill on Great Northern Rd. used to be where People's Pentecostal Church is now.

Gina DelBasso Coutu Chris.....we buy the tomatoes from the big trucks that come from Windsor.....we wash and cut them.....put them through this electric machine that crushes them and takes the seeds and peels and the juice falls into pails.....then we boil in huge pot.....then put in mason jars.....then when it's time for making pasta, we get a jar and let that simmer on the stove.

All the schools used to built a rink in the winter… The grade 7 and 8s would spend their gym classes outside putting up the boards, packing down the snow… and then watering with the firehose. Do they still do that?

Shirley Ruhanen Pulkkinen i double checked the "Immigrant History" book of the Finnlanders in Soo....and it is "Chateau Pines"... i remember being surprised when I learned the spelling. But Finns being Finns, forget about the French pronounciation...(hence the name SHADOW pines)...the Finn community must not have built the building, but, perhaps someone of French influence?? Of course, the Sault is surrounded by lots of French names. :)

1989, four drunken college students return from a bar in a Lada in the winter time. suddenly the car stops and wont go any further, passenger in the front get out to see what the problem is, we then see his head at floor level in the open door, the driver drove up a snow bank. four drunken college students pull a Lada out of the snow bank. four wet drunken college students needed a drink.

Ken Hattie Jokyonim Please, no full caps. It is very bad etiquette to do so and very rude as it is considered yelling and screaming when writing on the internet. Plus, it is near impossible to read. I posted many posts ago about the fact that this page so far has been very courteous to everyone and the language has been clean, too (as far as I have read). There are many age groups in here so can we show respect and courtesy to all. Not trying to offend anyone, but some may not know the above etiquette.

I saw some peeps posting music videos in here, so figured I'd throw up a Warrant one in tribute to singer Jani Lane who was found dead in an LA hotel… he had a couple of good gigs in the Sault, I recall one out at the Tumble Inn with Vince Neil and Slaughter…

Lee-Anne LaBerge Davidson I moved away 14 years ago. I don't recall Mother's pizza. The thing about the Soo is, there are so many great pizza joints it's hard to say one is much better than the other. If you folks that still live there want to really appreciate great pizza, move away for a while. I just make my own now because any pizza place in Edmonton just tastes like garbage.

Janice Dell Mary-Ellen Voth if you are craving some good Italian food in Calgary, I suggest the Italian Store just off of McKnight across from the new Pisces Pet Emporium. It's right beside Scarpone's, and has pretty good Panzarotti at lunch time (better than Spalumbo's in Inglewood anyway). AND I had a peach for dessert there one day, first one I've had in over 15 years!

He has serious diabetes and it put him in the chair.

Sharron Byce Eaton's was at Queen and March, (now provincial court or whatever) and then after it closed was Mark's and Spencer's, then Walker's. Simpson Sears was on Queen across from the old Soo Star, them built the building where Fabricland is now, called only Simpson's I think, then to the mall.

... you could enjoy an amazing Ukrainian meal at LUBA's. Great restaurant, delicious food using tried and true family recipes; thank you Luba, her mom and the Wyslosky Family for sharing a part of them with us. I have eaten in many Ukrainian restaurants over the past 25 years, and nothing came close to LUBA's. One of theTHE BEST!!! (It use to be location in a strip mall, Great Northern Road) next to what was the Canadian.

Having to go all the way to Charlevoux Michigan for concerts!!! So much fun…except when I was at the Rod Stewart concert and I was in a port a potty with no lock on the door. The guys were all going behind them. All of a sudden someone starts rocking my stall and the door was flying opened a bit and I still had my pants down. I was finally able to get my pants up and get out. I had horrible visions of ending up with that potty all over me. Thanks to my sister whom was supposed to be guarding my door!!!

Rick Deevey The zoo down there sucked. It was mostly pretty sad. The only things that seemed to not be crazy and depressed in there were the otters. That poor giant old bear pacing around on the cement in that tiny cage. And I remember the stuck the little cougar cage right in the middle of the deer paddock. Talk about twisted. Of course the horny monkeys provided hours of entertainment for the kids...

Dan Celetti Of course not. You are thinking of little people city. Dwarf Village was a play ground and park that had miniature houses depicting scenes from all the classic fairy tales. Lots of little toad stools and stuff. No Fwarf tossing at all.

WOW this site has really taken off since my sister started it 2 days ago already we are up over 1200 members! She has been out of town since yesterday so she will be very shocked and excited to see that the site she created became such a great hit in such a short time!!!! Keep sharing the memories everyone it's great too see!

Todd Gordon what people have to realize (those that moan about all the repetitive posts) that each time the same reminiscence comes up, it just allows new fresher faces to jump in and start new conversations about the memory - hey. you might even rekindle a friendship with someone you haven't seen in 20 years...

Does anyone remember the old Pine Plaza where Food Basics is? It had a bank, a candy store (I won't say what we used to call it but does anyone else know what we used to call the store?) There was a fabric store and a few others.

Ken Hattie Jokyonim May I make a point about the net and forums/groups, if it is alright. I do not mean to offend anyone. It is very rude to speak in all capital letters on the internet. It is considered screaming and a demonstration of anger. Forums forbid it and it is very difficult to read, especially when most people do not punctuate, too. Let us avoid screaming and swearing as there are many age groups involved here and, I hope, nobody wishes to offend. I think this will make a good thread for people to read.

May I make a point about the net and forums/groups, if it is alright. So far, this groups has been great in terms of courtesy to others and all. I do not mean to offend anyone. It is very rude to speak in all capital letters on the internet. It is considered screaming and a demonstration of anger. Forums forbid it and it is very difficult to read, especially when most people do not punctuate, too. Let us avoid screaming and swearing as there are many age groups involved here and, I hope, nobody wishes to offend. :-)

K-Mart made fresh donuts in the middle of the store? It was fascinating to watch the donuts being mechanically pressed out into the fryer, lazy river style, then flipped half way through and then collect at the end for a sprinkling of sugar. They also made fresh popcorn there too. The smell of freshly made donuts and popcorn was mmmmm.....

1967 Centenial Year, my mother made us three girls beautiful cotton gowns out of king size flat sheets. We had matching bonnetts and peek a boo ilet at the bottom on the gowns. She used to make all of our clothes as well way back when we were very young. Peddal pushers and pop tops. Do you remember those Pauly??

Rick Deevey Bought my first workboots there. Steel toe and shank, with the metatarsal guards on top. For a summer job in the Cold Mill and Tracks Dept., Algoma Steel. When I used those boots working tree planting and later construction jobs, I cut loose the metatarsal guards. They were hell to walk in, like Ski boots. Took a grinder to the studs.

Bill Moreland bought my first 45 record there along with the centre piece to play it on the record player lol. Actually bought 2 records that day - "Indian Reservation"- Paul Revere and the Raiders and "I just want to celebrate" - Rare Earth. I believe they were $0.29 each and $0.05 for the centre piece. Thieves lol

I had no glasses...no jewelry...no hat...but I had BLACK CAT BUBBLE GUM... OMG...I thought my Mom and Mrs. Greenwood were going to shoot me... the monkey was hilarious...opened the gum...and started chewing...and chewing...and then.. blowing bubbles...I was amazed.. and then he started smacking the bubbles... OMG...in no time at all the money was COVERED in BLACK CAT BUBBLE GUM...! My Mom was dying of embarassment...I'm sure thinking...how she couldn't leave me alone for a minute...and I was AMAZED...at the bubble blowing Monkey at the pet store...!! ME BAD !!

Tracy Golder Nikkel I lived in London for a year when I was younger. While there I went to a conference in Hamilton. As I was standing in line waiting to register for the conference I was chatting with the girl behind me in line, who happened to be from Thunder Bay. When we got to the registration desk, the lady registering us thought Sault Ste. Marie & Thunder Bay were opposite end of the same city, kind of like Kitchener-Waterloo. She was amazed to find out there is a whole lake & 8 hrs of driving between the 2 cities! Those southerners really do need to get out & see more of the world!

Rick Deevey Doing reno work on a government grant project out in Prince one summer between school years and had a lot of people stop on 2nd line asking where the highway west was. "We were driving along here and it just stopped! All there is, is the lake and someplace called the Bluewater Inn. How do you get to Thunder Bay?" We told them to go back there and wait for the ferry across Lake Superior. Then after a minute, we told them the truth; it kind of softened the blow that they had to drive back several miles along 2nd Line to get to the turn-off at Gt. Northern Rd.

I'm sure it's been mentioned…The Storm The sank the Edmund Fitzgerald …. November 1975. I was in the East End. Home ALONE with my younger Sister…Babysitter "stole" Mom's car and went out! We were terrified little girls, a huge tree came down in our yard VERY nearly missing our house! We saw it happen.

Rob M Robinson I've tried to leave a couple times, but then I always think back to the things that use to be here. I use to have a friend that lived in a house where Wendy's (downtown) parking lot is now. It burnt down in a grease fire. Across the street, there use to be a little station building.. behind the Adanac and Bumbacco sports..

OK.....Lefaves Meat Market on Poplar Avenue. I remember going there for my mom to buy stewing beef. I remember one time, all the cereal boxes on the shelf were ripped open.....someone was stealing the prizes inside.....they were those little propellors that you spun in your hands and they flew in the air.

Randy Moar I always tell people about the pizza in the Sault. Mrs B's is awesome! I also really liked Pisa Pizza on 2nd line which ironically is now Mrs B's. Panzarotti's from the Blue Boy and Auroras were also really good. My mom always bought North Street pizza but it never compared to Mrs B's.

Pamela Konawalchuk Edwards hey randy…there is a new place here called MOJO'S and it is the best pizza ever…his aunt is the original owner of the mrs b's receipe (auroara) from AUROARA'S ….its sooo awesome…old time pizza…yummmmm……p.s MRS B'S has changed their receipe and does not compare to years ago…

A 15-pack of cigarettes? Or a 30-pack of Number 7? Pre-rolled tobacco tubes you slid into the filter tube? Little plastic cigarette filters that were clear and, today they would claim that they demonstrated what nicotine and tar does to your lungs. The scary part is, it would be a great point made.

Rick Deevey Got it on average about twice a year. Sometimes for stupid things. You don't even know you've broken a rule and then your hands are burning.

Rick Deevey I remember them saying that if the vice principal (or whoever is doing the strapping) cocks his arm past vertical before the strap comes down, you can charge him with Assault. Never occurred to anybody "how do you prove it?"
August 10 at 12:50pm · Like · 1 person

Laurie Bragg- Faught I got it at home because my Mom had a school strap at home because my Grandfather and Father worked for the Board of Ed
August 10 at 12:50pm · Like · 1 person

Rick Deevey Another supposed trick was to pull out a hair from your head and lay it across your palm. Then the strap would draw blood and you could charge them. The stupid things we belived. Can't remember anybody trying it, though.

How about the ...ahem...bags of oleo (margerine) which, was white when you purchased it....you brought it home...your Mom would give it to you.....as a kid you would start squishing the yellow dot in the middle until the whole bag was yellow margerine…HAHAHAH…was it really lard???

Pirie Kaufman Yep. I was driving cab on a Sunday afternoon and picked up a fare at the PL wanting to go to the Back Door. The guy was slightly pickled and sure his wife was over there cheating. When we got to the gate, I saw Voorhees and was sure we'd be turned back. He heard the whole sad story, chuckled and waved us through. Maybe he called the local cops to tip them on a potential DUI.

i remember walking in corner stores and pointing out licorice babies with the 'N' word wow we've come a long way. didnt know it was wrong back then even at recess the 'N' word piles when wed all jump on someone. the teachers would let us play king of the castle and we'd throw each other off top of hill.

One of the things I loved about the Sault growing up was that there were nice parks for children in every neighbourhood and in the summer there were park leaders to organize games for the children. When I moved to North Bay there was much less of that and I missed it when I was raising my kids.

I am happy to see that someone remembers the A&W Drive Inn from the days when we were car hopping. I remember that for two weeks of every summer we had what we called A&W Northern Days where we were on roller blades and played Beat the clock so a root beer was 5 cents and then 10 cents etc. Some great times. Pirie Kaufman I remember when the downtown CIBC was a Dominion supermarket. Top Hat used to be the Oasis, and before that, a Metropolitan store, one of three "five-and-dimes" in that block. Jupiter/Kresge's is now a mini-mall. Woolworth's was across from the Windsor Hotel, next to the Royal Bank. Marilyn is right about the old Canadian Tire.

"Mister M's" at the Station Mall by the movie theatre…I remember how it was before the insipid '80's tiles the have now. They had those retro (now anyway:)) dark tiles. And the Dominion right across from there. They had those semi circular conveyor belts to put grocieries on and that system where you put them in a big plastic bucket thing that you set on another conveyorbelt with rollers. You took the tag it came with and could drive around to the front and they'd take your tag and load up your grocieries into your car for you.

If you go from Queen and Church to Queen and Andrew, there are fewer than twenty places that are what they were fifty years ago. I remember when there were four cinemas here, Algoma, Odeon, Orpheum and Princess, and two drive-ins, the Skylark and the Soo. I remember taking the ferry to Michigan, and the old City Hall across from the Lois Style Shop.
